

The Rapaport International Diamond Conference (IDC) took place in 2010 on Thursday, October 21st at The Times Center, New York. The one day conference held annually in New York City is renowned for identifying the important trends in the diamond industry. The topics of this year's conference were "Diamond Demand" and "Human Rights and the Diamond Industry – The Way Forward." (...)

The afternoon session was devoted to finding reasonable and pragmatic solutions to ethical problems confronting the diamond industry. The challenge facing the trade is not just recognizing the problems, but solving them. Experts in the field of business and human rights, law and ethics participated in open discussions.(...)
