

DIRITTI UMANI

Eritrean President Isaias Afewerki has denied that his country stifles freedom of speech, just days after media rights group Committee to Protect Journalists (CPJ) identified Eritrea as the most censored country in the world.

In an interview with VOA's English to Africa service Thursday in the capital, Asmara, President Isaias said his government is not interested in keeping people from expressing their views, but that he will do what is necessary to "protect national security" in the face of what he calls "external aggression" by those who take money from outside governments to create chaos and spread misinformation. (...)

The article:

http://www.eurasiareview.com/19052012-eritrea-president-afewerki-cracking-down-on-free-speech/?utm_source=feedburner&utm_medium=email&utm_campaign=Feed%3A+eurasiareview%2FVsnE+%28Eurasia+Review%29

More about:

<http://www.aljazeera.com/news/americas/2012/05/20125245510868537.html>

Most Censored Countries:

<http://www.cpj.org/reports/2012/05/10-most-censored-countries.php#1>

Passato...prossimo:

http://www.fabiomanzione.it/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=2841:eritrea-fuga-dallorrore&catid=46:diritti-umani&Itemid=105

