The global summit of women wrapped up a three-day conference here on Saturday by highlighting hot topics such as diversity, scarce resources and corporate social responsibility. The summit provided a global platform for women to share "what works" in accelerating women's economic advancement in the world.

The summit with 1,000 women coming from 81 countries closed with a grand ceremony that took place with the attendance of UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon, alongside many female business and government leaders. (...)
