

A Sovereign Palestine Could Be Celebrating Its 12th Anniversary

Scritto da Administrator

On 11 July 2000 Israeli prime minister Ehud Barak and Palestinian Authority chairman Yasser Arafat met at Camp David under the chairmanship of the United States president, Bill Clinton. Their purpose: to reach an agreement on all outstanding issues between Israel and the Palestinians – a so-called final status settlement. The summit ended on 25 July. If the negotiations had proved successful, we might have marked Wednesday 25 July 2012, as the twelfth anniversary of the founding of an independent, sovereign Palestine. What sort of Palestine would it have been? (...)
